

Sentinel world, private observations, and federated active inference

Agents share beliefs about one hidden location; observations and controls remain local

